With climate change expanding trade routes in the Arctic and the resultant pursuit of oil, gas, mineral deposits, and fish, it is imperative that the eight Arctic countries find paths towards sustainability and peace in the region. Revisiting and understanding the traditional play and games of the indigenous people of these regions can go a long way towards helping those determining the region’s future to work cooperatively towards these goals.

Honorable resolutions and solutions that lead to a sustainable and peaceful Arctic.

John Kilbourne, Ph.D
Grand Valley State University
kilbourj@gvsu.edu.