Arctic states policy statements’ analysis define areas of policy should be used as ‘foundation’ for common Arctic sustainability – indigenous peoples, economic development, Arctic research and education, environmental protection and international cooperation. Challenges in reaching Arctic sustainability are Infrastructure development, providing social welfare, and special ‘northern’ frameworks for decision making. If all areas are maintained, the Arctic will be truly sustainable.

Maksim Marchenkov
Northern (Arctic) Federal University