Making “clear” rules for the future Arctic offshore activities: new joint projects?

Since the Arctic offshore projects are technically challenging and highly riskier than ever, petroleum companies do not prefer going there "by one". Therefore, most likely all future projects in the Arctic will be in the form of a joint venture. Consequently, there is a need for investigating this form of cooperation.